OF TAXES IN ENGLAND

New Budget of Lloyd George Makes Heavy Inroads on

LONDON, May 21.-Under the new cheme of taxation introduced by David Lloyd George, chancellor of the ex-chequer, in his budget for 1914-15 a man income reaches the enormous total of $12,000,000,000; so it can easily stand the increased expenditure. Sir George argues that England can bear still greater increases in her budget.

"There are good grounds," he says, "for believing that the income and wealth of this country will again double in another thirty years. When it reaches $25,000,000,000—and I have no doubt that it will within a generation—a budget of their language deprives the visitor of

COTTON IS BETTER PACKED.

American Growers Profiting by Advice of English Spinners. LONDON, May 21.-The advice which been giving American cotton planters to improve their methods of packing is beimprove their methods of packing is beginning to bear fruit. One of the biggest American companies is now sending its cotton to England in neatly packed bales, thus escaping the great wastage that in years past has resulted from bad packing. Sir Charles Macara, president of the English Federation of English Cotton Spinners, pleased at the progress that the movement for better packing is making, still finds it not so rapid as he would like. "Thousands of pounds," he said, "will be saved every year by good packing, which I trust will ere long be the rule all over the cotton-growing districts of America."

There is one place in Rome where the non-italian-speaking buyer is in a way safeguarded by his ignorance of the native tongue. That is at the "rag fair," held every Wednesday in the Piazza della Chancelleria and adjacent street and spaces. Here once a week the traffickers in cloths, clothing, laces, rags and remnants of all kinds assemble, put up their booths in the early morning, and all day do a lively and vociferous trade. They are neighbored by dealers in jewelry and junk of every description, while on another side are the permanently stationed open-air vendors of flowers. Fruit, vegetables and fish, clustered around the statue of Giordano Bruno, burned here as a hereit, February 17, 1600.

from this the chancellor hopes to secure $1,250,000 this year and double that amount next year. The total increase of revenue from income tax and death duties this year will amount to something like $44,000,000.

Able the Bear Burden.

In spite of these increases Sir George Palsh, editor of the Statist, says the burden of taxation is much smaller than it has been in modern history. In 1880, when the expenditure came to $415,000,000, it was raised out of a national income of $5,000,000,000. Now the national income reaches the enormous total of $12,000,000,000; so it can easily stand.

In one respect the inability to speak I Italian is a great disadvantage to the tourist. That is in the matter of shopping. To go into a store and ask for the interpreter is almost an invitation to be charged extra prices. Of course, where the rates are fixed—"prezzi fissi"— and marked plainly on the goods there is no such risk. But in other cases the rates rise rapidly upon the sound of an English-speaking voice asking for translation.

The annual declamation contest of the Naturalization of

Asiatics

LONDON. May 21.-The imperial govdominions should be recognized as a British subject either in the United Kingdom or the other dominions. It was agreed that uniform laws on this point should be passed, but the Canadians. Australians and New Zealanders insisted that a clause should be inserted which would enable them to exclude Asiatics or any undesirables, even though they had taken out naturalization papers in some other part of the empire. In settlement of this point it was finally agreed that an alien must have, as a consideration of naturalization, "an adequate knowledge of the English language."

The Canadian and Australian parliaments have passed the bill with this clause, and the measure had also passed the house of lords and was awalting consideration in the house of commons, when the Jewish organizations in London brought up a protest that the clause making "an adequate knowledge of the English language" necessary would operate to the prejudice of large bodies of dethat an alien must have, as a consideration of naturalization, "an adequate knowledge of the English language."

The Canadian and Australian parliaments have passed the bill with this clause, and the measure had also passed the house of lords and was awaiting consideration in the house of commons, when the Jewish organizations in London brought up a protest that the clause making "an adequate knowledge of the English language" necessary would operate to the prejudice of large bodies of desirable Jews. Their request that this provision be left out was heeded by the imperial parliament, and the whole question of who should be admitted or refused, was left to the home office authorities. The clause stands, however, in the Canadian and Australian legislation, so the original agreement for uniform laws appears for the time being, at least, to be defeated.
